Resumes and Cover Letters for Master's Students

What is the purpose of a resume?

A resume is a brief, informative summary of your abilities, education, and experience. It should highlight your strongest assets and skills and differentiate you from other candidates seeking similar positions. Remember that a strong resume is an important step toward obtaining an interview. Tailor your resume to the type of position you are seeking. Your resume should reflect the kinds of skills the employer values based on the role you're applying for.

I'm planning on applying to several different types of jobs. Will I be expected to write different resumes for each one?

It's important to think about your reader. Let's say you are receiving a master's degree in data science and are applying for roles in tech as well as generalist positions in big consulting firms. You will want to target each resume to the specific employer. For example, employers in tech will be interested in relevant projects and experience analyzing datasets. Be clear about how you developed those skills in courses or internship experiences. Consulting firms will be concerned with leadership and teamwork skills; in that case, you might want to include more information about your involvement with student groups, volunteer work, or internships. Resume writing can be difficult. MCS supports the responsible use of generative AI as a tool to support your career and professional development. Learn more:

A friend of mine, who is in business school, told me I need to have a one-page resume. Is that true?

For most master's degree candidates, it is typical and often preferred to have a one-page resume. Normally two-page resumes are acceptable if you are advanced in your career, have years of experience, or have a PhD. For BA/BS, MA/MS, and MBA candidates, a one-page resume is the norm. When in doubt, ask one of the GSAS advisers.

Are there formatting guidelines I should keep in mind?

Stick to a common, easy to read font, and avoid text boxes, color, and shading. We discourage the use of templates. Font size should be between 10 and 12 point and kept consistent throughout the document. Margins should be equal all the way around the page and should be at least three quarters of an inch in size.

Can someone at the Mignone Center for Career Success review my resume?

Yes. Weekly resume review drop-in hours are available. You may also have your resume reviewed as part of an advising appointment with a Harvard Griffin GSAS staff member (to schedule an appointment, visit our website and follow the directions on Crimson Careers). Note that alumni in Firsthand Advisors also offer industry-specific resume critiques.

Am I eligible for the Campus Interview Program at Harvard? How does it work?

Master's degree candidates in the Harvard Griffin GSAS are able to search for and apply to many Recruiting Program jobs and internships, including some with campus interviews. Be aware that the Recruiting Program is primarily for entry-level hiring of undergraduates. Employers will indicate in their job description and requirements section whether or not they are willing to receive applications from Harvard Griffin GSAS master's students.

You may want to add a sentence on why you feel you are a good fit for the position, what draws you to the organization, what motivates you, or why you are seeking this experience as a next step in your professional journey.

Middle paragraph(s) (why you?):

You should have one or two paragraphs that elaborate on how you have developed the relevant skills required for the job, and any relevant experiences or education you have acquired. Of equal importance is your argument for how your interest in both the job and the organization developed. You will want to ensure that you include why it would be a logical decision on their part to hire you.

Children's Rights
330 Seventh Ave
New York, NY 10001

Dear Ms. Maeder,

I am writing to apply for the position of paralegal at Children's Rights. I learned of the position through a posting at Harvard's Mignone Center for Career Success. I received an M.A. from Harvard in May 20XX in East Asian Regional Studies, with a concentration on modern Korean history and Japanese sociology, and received a B.A. with a magna cum laude distinction from Smith College in 20XX in East Asian Studies and American Studies. I believe working for Children's Rights would provide an excellent opportunity for me to become tangibly involved in the world of law, where I would be able to apply my knowledge and skill sets into concrete practice.

Throughout my years of study at prominent educational institutions in the U.S. and Japan, I have demonstrated an outstanding level of academic achievement and have shown a particular strength in social science research that requires analytical and speculative approaches. I have been consistently engaged in conducting long-term and short-term research projects, most of which involved meticulous investigation and qualitative research - the experience that I believe would transfer well to the position of paralegal. My salient past research experience includes a year spent in Tokyo, where I conducted extensive research and a series of interviews in English and Japanese to examine the issues regarding gender roles and equality in Japan. Based on the interviews and research findings, I successfully produced a paper that was selected for presentation at a renowned academic conference at Smith College. For my master's thesis, I researched heavily in English and Korean to examine today's pressing immigration issues in South Korea. My thesis, according to a prominent professor from Harvard, carries "the most extensive state-of-the-field analysis of multiculturalism in South Korea [to date]."

In addition to my strong academic background, I have experience working for various not-for-profit organizations where I have acquired skills in planning events, developing and managing organizational programs, communicating with a diverse group of people, and administering logistics. For example, at United Nations University Press (UNUP) in Tokyo, I worked closely with the Editor and Sales Coordinator to organize the UNUP online publications database and communicated with various scholars and authors regarding book recommendations. More recently at the Asian University for Women Support Foundation, I assisted in coordinating large-scale fundraising events and writing grant proposals to help young women from South and Southeast Asia receive quality education at the Asian University for Women in Bangladesh.

With these qualifications, I am convinced I have the capability to provide the best assistance to your attorneys in their practice of litigation. Thank you for considering my application and please let me know if you would like further information regarding my candidacy. Please feel free to contact me at (617) 555- 5555 or via email at yasy@post.harvard.edu. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Jasmine Young

Sample Cover Letter #2: Ginnie is applying online to a global consulting firm that recruits Harvard students but expects cover letters and resumes to be uploaded to its website. As such, they use a formal business letter format, and indicate their preferred offices. For companies that recruit Harvard students, including those who use Crimson Careers to take resumes, it is not necessary for them to say they will follow up with the recruiter the way they might with companies they find on their own. However, they do indicate that they have spoken to a consultant and they express interest in continuing the conversation about opportunities within the firm.

Seth Kassenberg
Management Consulting, Inc.
123 Boylston Street
Boston, MA 00000

Dear Mr. Kassenberg:

Kamina Jackson suggested I apply for the associate position with Management Consulting, Inc. when I recently spoke with her at your information session for Harvard University students at the Charles Hotel. Please accept this letter as an application for the position of associate consultant with Management Consulting, Inc. Based on my research of your firm and my qualifications, I am confident I am a good match for your organization. I will complete my master's in Computational Science and Engineering in May 20XX from Harvard University and look forward to the possibility of joining Management Consulting, Inc.

My interest in a business career is long standing and is coupled with strong research, analytical, communication, leadership, and teamwork skills. While exploring my passion for statistics during my master's degree, I have kept up my interest and knowledge of the industry through the business press. I also have taken part in various business classes at Harvard. In one project, while working in teams of four, we analyzed a case and presented recommendations to consultants. I received positive feedback on my analytical abilities and teamwork skills, and I am confident I can make a significant contribution to your firm and its clients.

I look forward to speaking to you about the possibility of my joining your team at Management Consulting, Inc. I am most interested in working in your offices in Boston or Los Angeles as, through my research, I have discovered that many of the firms these offices serve fit best with my area of expertise. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Ginnie Lee

Sample Request for Informational Interview: This e-mail message is not designed to accompany a resume as a job application, but rather to request an informational interview to learn more about the field of not-for-profit consulting. As such, Suzanne is careful to avoid asking for a job, or for anything other than the chance to listen and ask questions about the alumna's experience making the transition from academe to non-profit consulting.

Dear Director Ramos:

I found your name through Firsthand Advisors and saw that you completed your master's in East Asian Studies before beginning your work as a non-profit consultant. I will be completing my master's in East Asian Regional Studies at Harvard next summer and am interested in learning more about how I might use my background in non-profit consulting. Working in the field of non-profit consulting is a career option that I have been reading and thinking about for some time. I have had the opportunity to intern at two large non-profit organizations in the Boston area and have spoken to a few former members of my department about their own decisions to leave academe and use their skill sets in the private sector.

Would you be available to connect for 20 minutes in the coming weeks to share how you leveraged your graduate degree beyond academia? I am available the week of October 9 if you have any availability then.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration. Sincerely,

Suzanne Lilly

Sample Thank You Letter: Having completed a formal interview with this organization, Charles sends out a thank you note within 24 hours. He sends it via e-mail, as the interviewer has indicated that the organization intends to make a decision about his candidacy within a few days.

Dear Dr. Funahashi:

Thank you very much for taking the time to meet with me yesterday morning about opportunities with Global Education Associates. I am even more enthusiastic about the work you do now that I have had the chance to learn more.

As we discussed, my experience at WorldTeach and my extensive international travel have instilled in me the desire to foster educational opportunities worldwide, and to promote cross-cultural understanding of educational methods and adapt them, as appropriate, in developing countries. I am particularly interested in the Educating for Global Citizenship Program due to its commitment to meeting the educational needs of the emerging global community by offering teachers, youth leaders, and community organizers ways to comprehend and respond to the critical and creative task of educating the world.

Thank you once again for your time and consideration. I look forward to speaking with you further about the contribution I could make to your organization.

Sincerely,

Charles Cestari
